

WEEKLY NEWS-MAY 11-15, 2009

If you look closely Kyler has a butterfly on his finger.

Our butterflies emerged from their cocoons. One butterfly flew out of the one open flap and is hiding some where in our room. The other three we set free and we have one cocoon left. Will it survive and become a butterfly? We will have to wait and see.

CBI NEWS: Would you believe we did not go out on the CBI on Wednesday? Some how the staff just did not want to take the students out in the rain and storms. Hopefully, we will recycle next week. Send in those aluminum cans!

Does anyone have a box of Kleenex? We need at least one to make it through the rest of the year.
Thanks.

MARK YOUR CALENDARS!

We will not have school on Monday, May 25th. That is Memorial day. The last full day of school for the students is Friday, June 5th.

Here is Rena wearing a funny face. During language she chose to wear something and then chose the funny face from 7 different things to wear. She even let me take a picture of her. I gave her a mirror and she really liked to look at herself with the funny face on.

We read 5 Little Sharks. Tomorrow we will make edible aquariums. Today we will count and eat gummy sharks. For the rest of the year, we will be doing lessons with rubber ducks. We will be reading different books about rubber ducks. Stay tuned.
